CHANLER WON'T TALK DIVORC

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. Robert W. Long, Charter former Sheriff of Dutchess county, writer and husband of Miss Elizabeth Long, once singer, is back at his studies in the quiet Dutchess building at No. 1 West Nineteenth street. His wife was on vacation in London six weeks ago, appearing publicly in the Hotel Bristol.

John Armstrong Chaloner called "Red" Pete Parker.

Mr. Chaloner was accompanied by a beautiful young woman with a taxi wheel up to the studio building.

"Just back from Newport," said he to Parker. "Been staying close with a lot of money."

"Are you suing for divorce?"
asked my dear friend, turned to him. "You and Mr. Chaloner defile the register here!" From the entrance —Is Prince Bulgorodsky?— began I, reporting.

—He's delighted to be back in dear New York. Please say I am working—working hard. I shall stay right here—

By that time the companion was sitting in the hall.

—You see will remain in New York?

—No, remain here—here in America—good day.

Mr. Chambers' eyes twinkled as he bowed.

WIFE SEEKS PARDON FOR CARDENIO KIN

Mrs. Cardenio F. King is being told by her son and former Attorney General Herbert Hackett, together with a number of prominent men and women, to join in obtaining a pardon from Governor Ross for her husband. He is now serving a life term in the state prison.

The plea for clemency in Governor and his council will be made on the ground that the former murderer is suffering a mental agony from an incurable malady, so that the rigorous prison discipline aggravates the disease to such an extent that he will live only a short time longer if he is confined here.

The London Standard Prints Praise of Boston Convention by British Delegates.

From the London Standard

A NEW movement has been started for greater truthfulness in advertising, and it promises to become international in its scope. This movement began at the seventh annual convention of the National Advertising Clubs of America, recently held in Boston, U. S. A., which was attended by a large delegation of English advertising managers.

"I am very glad of gathering that I ever advertised," said one of

From other sources we learned that in the United States the picture of advertising has been somewhat different. It has not only lagged a considerable distance behind the rest of the world, but it has been slow. In nearly every city and country advertising clubs have been organized, and in many cases they have crystallized public opinion in a way not known as "the great model of the world" in the active co-operation in every case of the business and commerce. And these clubs are a main in the powerful Association of long distances—many even thousands of miles—to take part in the proceedings. All were keen-eyed, alert men, but as remote from each other in temperament as the Poles. And yet all were concentrated—steeped to the eyebrows in one subject—advertising: the art of booming!

"Many of them brought their wives with them, and there was a lot of en-the fruit, the whole was pronounced good. The sermon was pronounced good by the congregations and enthusiasm of a gospel. It was recognized, of course, that the evangelist was doing his best to get the consumer interested in the goods of a product. The evangelist was not expected to be really effective an advertiser. The evangelist must only state what he was doing, and the goods were expected to be abundantly true. In other words, "The goods must be delivered." The evangelist was not to be disappointed. The goods, the actual goods described, must be delivered or advertising loses its force. Large Artistic Boston

"Horton appealed to me as being considerably more English than New York, and also more artistic. I do not like the regular, monotonous streets in New York; they are so matter of fact. In Boston, however, most of the houses are roseted with creepers, plants, and that always makes for beauty."

and we are here for better advertising.' A hen cackles only when it has delivered the goods.

"Another point, brought out by the discussions, that made a deep impression upon the newspaper men present, was the practically unanimous admission that the advertising convention, have given a striking example of what can be done in this way, and he hopes to see England fall in line with a similar project in the near future."

There shallow draughts intoxicate the brain,
And drinking largely sobers us again.
